Tom,

After the second day in court (Friday, December 7, 2007), from the time we left the courthouse and through our dinner, D_____ seemed to be upset and secretive about his meeting with Judge Wisser. He would only talk about the large number of criminal cases that the judge heard in his career including death penalty cases. I don't recall the number of cases, but C_____ was quoting a number. D_____ would not talk about what was bothering him in the car or at dinner while you, your dad, Gene and I were present. When asked about what he said to the judge, C_____ would not say anything and he would look away and fidget.
